Young Dude Steals $2000 Worth of Jewelry-His Father Saves Him—He Died in a Fit-The Democrats Talk Things Over-Other News.

A horrible accident occurred last night, between 7 and 8 o'clock, in the dive at 29 Los Angeles street, kept by Mattie Dufree. Effic Smith, an inmate of the place, has been drinking very hard for the last three over thinking very hard for the six three or four days, and taking morphine in large quantities at the same time. She kept to her room all day yesterday, suffering from the effects of her debauch. About 6 o'clock the proprietress went to her room and took ber a cup of tea and some toast. The woman was lying in bed, and a man named Tom O'Donnell, who had been living with woman was lying in bed, and a man named Tom O'Donnell, who had been living with her for some time past, was in the room. She was cheerful and talkative, and nothing unusual was noticed in her manner. She drank the tea, and shortly after the man and Mme. Dufree left the room. This was the last time the woman was seen alive. Shortly before so clock a smell of burning clotn and flesh was noticed by a woman about the place, who, on investuating, saw smoke issuing from the door of Effic Smith's room. She at once gave the alarm, and when one of the men about the place made his way into the room a sickening spectacle presented itself. The lamp was burning on a small table by the side of the bed, on which lay the dead body of Effic Smith, partially nude and half covered with the bed-toluing. The room was filled with smoke, and the oder was so sickening that the man could not remain in the room, but had to get-out into the fresh air to breathe. He returned in a few influences, however, and put out the fire, which had almost consumed the woman's garments, hadly burning the body about the breast. From the position in which the woman was lying when found, in a partially sitting position, propped up by plinows, she had evidently taken a heavy dose of morphine, and lighting a clearette had left the foom. Becoming stupefied from the effects of the drug, she dropped the lighted cigarette on her bosom among the bed clothers, and was suffocated by the smoke. No noise was heard in the room, and the face of the dead woman gave no evidence of suffering, showing that death had been painless. Coroner Meredith was at once notified, and had the body removed to Orr & Sutch's establishment, on Spring street, where the inquest will be held this morning at 10 o'clock. home in East Los Angeles: large lot, theely in-proved, with choice shrung and flowers; five room nouse nearly new; only l'a blocks from Downey ave; this is a bargain. Effic Smith was the true name of the woman. She was born in Portland, Or., and her relatives now reside on Puget Sound. She had only been in the city about two months, having lived in San Pedro all last summer. From the Inmates of the house it was learned that she was a confirmed victim of the opium habit, smoking as well as eating it, and for the past three slays had been under its effect. She had at one time been a rather good-looking woman, a brunette, with dark enring hair, but the effects of the hard-life she had been leading were plainly apparent even in death. She

He Robs His Employer of $2000 Worth of Jewelry. Several weeks ago one of the most ex-tensive jewelry houses in this city unearthed a first-class sensation. The proprietor discovered that his jewelry was disappearing in a most mysterious manner. Pleece of jewelry, from a gold thimble to a diamond ring, would "turn up missing" almost every day, and he made up his mind that he was being robbed by an expert thief. After taking an inventory, he learned that he was looser to the ture of $2000, and that the most of it had been taken during a period of three or four months. A detective was sent for, and after he had talked the matter over with the proprietor, he came to the conclusion that the jeweler was being robbed by one of his employés. They were all shadowed, but for a number of days the deovered that his jewelry was disappearing Main st., 15 rooms; lease runs 25 years; price, including farniture, only $120; none but those having the cash need apply. GROIRS, 314 N. Main st., room 1. conclusion that the joweler was boling robbed by one of his employes. They were all shadowed, but for a number of days the detectives could get not clew. One evening last week, just before the store was closed, the detective, who was watching the interior of the store, noticed one of the young men, who is the son of a very wealthy citizen, take something from one of the cases. The thief-taker followed him out of the store and kept him in sight. The young man, who is one of the most popular society bloods in the city, walked about the streets a while, when he made a bee line for a room. The detective was close on his heels, and noticed him secrete something. As soon as the young thief left the room the detective entered, and was astonished to find the $2000 worth of jewelry securely hid, and had not the young man gone to the spot to secrete his last boodle, the detective could never have found the place. The next morning the young man was confronted by the digettive and his employer, and accused of the theft. He stoutly denifed that he had ever stolen a thing from the store, and would not acknowledge it until he was told where he had secreted the boodle. He then broke down and confessed everything. He said he had not disposed of any of the jewelry which he stole, for the reason that he wished to get as much ahead as possible before leaving the city. His father was told of what was going on, and after a lengthy and storny consultation the jeweler decided not to prosecute him, as this is his first offense against the law. The whole matter has been hushed up as much as possible and the young man has learned a good lesson. per year; will be sold very cheap; owner is com-belled to leave, and must sell at once. J. ### FUNNY THIEVES.

They Steal a Valise and Then Forget Monday afternoon two men arrived at the Santa Fé depot. They had some hand-baggage which they desired to leave in the waiting-room until they returned from a trip union, and each of the santa feet. waiting-room until they returned from a trip uptown, and asked the colored porter, Williams, to look after it while they were away. Sometime afterward they returned and took all their packages except a valise, which they said belonged to another of their party, who would be along to claim it. The porter left the depot at 5 o'clock, and the valise, not having been claimed, was left in the wating-room until the night watchman noticing it removed it, and placed it in the care of the baggage-man. Tuesday a man made his appearance, and asked the colored man for his valise, and he, not knowing that it had been removed to the baggage-mon, told the stranger that he had waited for him the previous day until after his usual leaving time, and had left the valise in the waiting-room, and did not know anything further about it. This led to an argument, when the stranger struck the porter, who immediately ran to get a plece of iron, and the stranger pulled a "gun." A special constable then made his appearance, and bloodshed was avoided. Explanations followed, and the stranger then applied to the baggage-man and described the valise and its centents, among which were a petrified wood chain, with gold connecting-links, and some other things. He said his friends carried the key to it, so he could not produce it. He went to find his friends and get the key, but has not since shown up, nor has the valise been claimed. A rearrance, trip uptown, and asked the colored porter, things. He said his friends carried the key to it, so he could not produce it. He went to find his friends and get the key, but has not since shown up, nor has the valise been claimed. A report was made to the police on Tuesday that a valise had been taken from 7.½ South Main street, and among the contents described as in this valise was a silver watch and chain, made of petrified wood, mounted with gold.

The Democrats.

The Democrats held another meeting at Mayor Workman's office yesterday afternoon. It is said it was in no sense a regular caucus, but rather an informal meeting of the leaders of the party to discuss the present situation in the Council, and decide on the best men for the places to be filled in January. Those present at the meeting were not inclined to talk, saying that nothing had been definitely settled, and consequently that there was nothing of any public interest to report. When asked whether anything had been done about the city offices, such as Chief of Police, Fire Chief, City Clerk, etc., there was a dead silence, and nothing could be learned. A well-known Democras was seen by a Times reporter yesterday afternoon, and asked whether he had any objection to talling what had transpired at the meeting. "Of course I have," he replied. "Bun you may quote me as saying in a general way that nothing was done. We talked over matters in a general way, and that is all. No, I don't know whether Mr. Teed will succeed himself as City Clerk. Strohm may remain at the head of the fire department, or he may not, I can't say which. Nothing is ready for publication yes. When any conclusion is reached, the newspapers will probably hear of it. This is all the satisfaction I can give you."

Trouble—The Nadeau After Him.
Churchill, the "lightning messenger," was again arrosted yesterday afternoon by Chief Darey in froat of the Nadeau, at the instance of the proprietors of the house, and brought to the station, where he was locked ap. Several gentlemen who saw the arrest called at the station to see why a person should be arrested for standing on the corshould be arrested for standing on the corner. The Chief explained that the boy had been arrested at the instance of Mr. Dunham, who said he was a nuisance, hanging about the door of the hotel, and asked him to take him away, which he had done. He then said that if Mr. Dunham did not appear and swear out a complaint against him in half an hour he would be released. Mr. Dunham was notified, and sent word that he would appear this morning, whereuponithe boy was turned loose.

This makes the fourth or fifth time that "Lightning," as he is generally called, has been arrested at the instance of the Nadeau House praprietor. He has been examined as to his sanity twice before Judge Gardiner and each time released, when he returned immediately to his old haunts. Serious charges are alleged against him, but so far none have been proven, as no one has appeared against him.

Every one seemed to be enjoying themselves, and the floor was well filled with couples, brimming over with fun as every new dance was called. The grand march, composed of about 130 couples, was led by Mr. and Mrs. P. J. Bolan. At midnight Tom O'Mara, the caterer, furnished an excellent little supper, gotten up in a style that would satisfy the most fastidious taste—after which dancing was resumed and kept up until near daylight. The following are the names of the different committees: Committee of Arrangements: A. Vinette, L. Row, H. M. Jones and T. E. Cross. Reception Committee: C. G. Willman, A. L. McDonald, B. L. Xumber of People Buried in the Reins and Xarrowly Hacape with Their Lives—Great Damage Done to Property—News Prom Other Towns,

Shortly after midnight yesterday morning a sad accident occurred at the new town of Crescenta, about twelve miles merch of this city, which resulted in the loss of two lives and the destruction of the new hotel recently opened at that place. Sunday night a strong wind set in along the footbills, which increased Monday night until it blew almost a gale. A number of the inhabitants of the place, fearing that their houses could not stand the heavy strain put upon them, sought safety in the hetel, among them being Dr. Van Schaack and family.

There were also several guests in the hotel, together with the manager, Edwin G. Arnold and his family, consisting of his wife and two daughters, aged 19 and 3 years. About hidnight Mr. Arnold, who, with his wife and children, occupied a room in the back part of the lower story, we awakened by the noise of the wind. He and his wife and his olitest child got up. Mr. Arnold, fearing the building might fall, put out the kerosene oil tamps in the hall and substituted candles, which were not so likely to set fire to the wreck in the event of the building being blown down. He then went through the hall to the front door to fasten it more securely. He was in the act of doing this when there was a crash, and in an instant all was darkness, and he found himself lying in a little vacant space and imprisoned by broken timbers and loosened brick. He made an effort to get out, but could not do so. Above the noise of the wind he heard the cries of others who were imprisoned by the wreck. In a few minutes Mr. Holly, who lives near the hotel, came with a lantern. Mr. Arnold called to him and after some difficulty made his whereabouts known. After some work he was released, and at once proceeded to the rescue of his family. He called to them that he was safe and was coming to their relief, but received no response except from his youngest child, who kept crying out, "Where are you, papa?" By this time other neighbors began to arrive with lanterns, and at once proceeded to he work of rescue. AT OTHER POINTS.

A gentleuen who returned from the storm section last night said to a Times reporter: "A general storm prevailed. Sunday night, and considerable damage is reported at Pasadena, Lordsburg, Rialto and Crescenta. A number of buildings have been blown down and fruit trees uprooted. Orange groves have suffered some, but to what extent I cannot say. It will be some time before a reliable estimate can be made. CUCAMONGA (Cal.), Dec. 14. — [Special.] A great windstorm occurred at Cucamonga on the night of the 18th inst. North Cucamonga experienced one of the greatest windstorms ever known. The fine large hotel, costing upwards of $200,000, lately finished, was completely demolished. People sleeping in the rooms barely escaped with their lives, being timely warned by the creaking and groaning of the timbers. Lacy & Ward's pipe manufactory was also a scene of ruin. The sides of the building appeared to have been crushed in, letting the roof fall down on it. The building owned by Wilson was blown into a thousand pieces. So violent was the wind that not a thing marked the place where the building once stood. Mr. Sucker, a retired grocer, apprehending danger from the storm, took his family to a neighbor's ho man building was blown over and took fire. Everything is a complete loss; ins farance only $800. ### A BOTEL THIEF.

How He Got Into a Guest's Room at the New Denison Tucsday, about midnight, Mr. and Mrs. Tuesday, about midnight Mr. and Mrs. Putmarn, who reside with their family at the New Denison on Main, opposite Fourth street, had their room entered by some thief, who forced the door open with a piece of wire. The thief managed to grab Mr. Putnam's panta, which contained his money (about $20) and keys, also a new Masonic pin, and was doubtless scared off then, as Mr. Putnam's lovear-old son heard the intruder and made some motion to arise. This seems evident, as Mrs. Putnam's jewels were all loose around the bureau and not disturbed. Mr. Putnam picked up the piece of wire on the floor in the morning which unlocked their door. Mr. Putnam is a train dispatcher employed by the Southern Pacific Railroad Company in this city.

Los Angelos and Ocean Railway. John West Green, secretary and also a director of the Los Angeles and Ocean Raildirector of the Los Angeles and Ocean Railway Company, has received the official seal and the stock books of the corporation. The survey of the road, which began some days ago under the direction of James Campbell, is progressing rapidly, over twelve miles of the route being aiready completed. The road will run from Los Angeles to Long Beach, and be in reality as well as in name a splendid transit road. The work of grading will begin just as soon as a few more preliminaries pertaining to the right of way are settled. The company has secured commodious offices on Main street, near Requent, to be occupied soon. They have also opened negotiations for the purchase of ties and iron on most favorable soulitions.

with Embeasionnest, Discharged.
The case of The People against Ed L.
Baker, in which the defendant was charged with embezziement, was called in Justice Austin's court yesterday morning. From the testimony adduced it appeared that the defendant was on September 16th, and still is, a Government land agent. On that date he agreed with one Charles Gelger to locate a parcel of Government land, and for this service he received the sum of $235.
But in the agreement it was stated that this $25 was not to be touched by Baker until the land was properly located, and it was this little clause that caused all the trouble. Baker received the money and at once located a piece of land in Sauta Barbara county, which, however, for some reason did not suit Geiger. This being the case, Baker showed another piece to Geiger and asked if it would sait him. Geiger expressed himself well pleased with the last selection, and Baker, who had filed on it once before, but had an abandonment notice of it, sent both the notice of relocation and abandoment to the land office together.

As the papers were perfectly en regle, tion and abandoment to the land office together.

As the papers were perfectly en regle, Baker, after sending them off, felt himself at liberty to use the money, and did so. But it seems there was a flaw in the papers after all, and they were returned. Baker then called on Geiger, and, relating to him the situation, offered to at once locate another piece of fand which should be satisfactory to his client. This Geiger refused to allow, and, saying he would have no more to do with the business, demanded his money back.

Baker had spent the money, and refused to reimburse Geiger, so the whole matter resulted in Geiger swearing out a complaint and having Baker arrested for embezzlement. Mr. Shaw appeared for the defendant, and Deputy District Attorney Cheif and Mr. Gottschalk appeared for the prosecution.

But three witnesses were examined, when ant, and Deputy District Attorney Cheir and Mr. Gottschulk appeared for the prosecution.

But three witnesses were examined, when after short arguments by either counsel, the case was submitted. Justice Austin, in reviewing the evidence, stated that while the terms of the agreement were very loosely defined, it was evident that Baker was to earn the money by locating the land before he used it, but as his intentioris were good and only defeated by the flaw in the papers sent to the land office, he could therefore see no reason for accusing Baker of criminal intent, and would dismiss the case and discharge the defendant.

Baker afterward told a Times reporter that the whole quarrel was caused by a little disagreement, in which a personal enemy of his figured more than the principal, Mr. Geiger, and he would now locate a desirable piece of land for Mr. Geiger and make a tender or it to him, thereby making things satisfactory all around.

It is a many admirable in coloring. strong bit of realism, admirable in coloring and showing an unexpected mastery of technique. The picture is a fragment—a hint—of a story. A high board fence is shown, over which the hands of a climbing darky boy are visible, the right grasping two such glorious bunches of gropes as are familiar in Southern California vineyards. The light of the picture is beautifully concentrated in the white muscatels, and the flame tokays, with their autumn leaves. On the near side of the fence are seen just the two eager hands of a white urchin, upstretched to grasp the ravished clusters. The whole picture is bright and striking, and does great credit to the artist. strong bit of realism, admirable in coloring

Zenith City by the Saline Sea, and Tells What He Saw—The fative Pronunciation Throws the SANTA BARBARA, Dec. 12 .- [Corre SANTA BARBARA, Dec. 12.—(Correspondence of THE TIMES.) Leaving the metropolis of Southern California for this city by the Southern Pacific Railway, I found a variety of country, graduated from very hilly and broken, with narrow desert valleys, to the most fertile and luxuriant imaginable. After seeing the apricot, orange, apple and other fruit orchards of the Santa Clara Valley and the country approach-ing San Buenaventura, a Southern Californian may tell me any kind of fruit-producing romance and I will meekly sit by and believe every word of it without regard to the dimensions. I saw fields of squashes where the adventurer could step from one to another across the field, many of said squashes large as a washtub, although I learn they do not use them for that purpose. Apples lay from six inches to a foot deep under trees from which they had been shaken. The producing capacity of this valley is said to be an unknewn quantity, although it has been farmed for generations. Ventura it a small town, ecattered and somewhat dilapidated in appearance, but considerably elated over the fact that a very large flow of petroleum has been discovered back in the valley. They have struck oil in paying quantities.

The railway from Ventura to Santa Barbara runs along the coast, giving a fine view of the same, and will repay a visit to this quaint old town to any one that appreciates the grand and sublime in Nature. The Santa Ynez Mountains akirt the coast and in places encroach upon the sea, and in no place is valley or bench between mountains and sea to exceed two or three miles in width. There are, however, some very fine ranches and wealthy farmers. The station at Santa Barbara is from one to two miles out of town. It is one mile to the man that rides, two miles to the man that rides, two miles to the man that has the audacity to walk. Everybody comes down at train time to see who somes. The railway is a new toy to this gray-headed old town that spreads its history over two or three centuries, in such a quiet way that very few people know that there is such a place. It is now open to the live Yankee by railway, and he may blow into it the breath of life. Off to the south, twenty miles away, is the mountainous island of Santa Cruz, and to the southwest Santa Rosa, that, from the top of the foothills east of the town, form a very pleturesque scene, which, taken with the landscape in the foreground, makes as pretty a picture as the mind can conceive. The long range of the inagination can hardl it-producing romance and I will akly sit by and believe every word from the top of the foothills east of the town, form a very picturesque scene, which, taken with the landscape in the foreground, makes as pretty a picture as the mind can conceive. The long range of the imagination can hardly present to the mind anything superior to it. The town is dull, of course, in comparison to Los Angeles, that has had infused into it some of the most enterprising spirit of the Nation, but as a suburban town, a quiet nook, for the "resorter" or invalid, it has attractions that are well worth considering among other California points.

The people are of a variety of nationalities and classes, and among them I find prominent is the heathen Celestial, with his patent Chinese sprinkler, who has a corner on shirt-bosoms and cuffs. John is used here, as at Los Angeles, as a domestic animal to a large degree. I went down to see the harbor, but found a road instead. They have a very good roadstead that they tell me will float the largest war vessels, but I did not see any iron-clais hanging around, owing, probably to the pacific nature of the people. They have driven piling out into the bay about a quartermile for the unloading of vessels. I supposed, but a gentleman standing by said I had been gulled by some seagulls, and when I explained to him that I had always lived where prairieschooners only sailed, he accepted the apology. The tide here rises about five feet, and I found it to be an uncommon luxury to be lulled to sleep by the roar of a five-foot tide. On the strength of it I slept twelve hours. I was used to but nine. I judge this is a good point for those suffering from insomnia; at least, with twelve hours' refreshing sleep, I find myself so fresh I may not keep in this climate. They make a specialty of sleep here. Really, one with sensitive and troublesome nerves will find it a benefit to come here.

The fruit display is on the California plan—large and generous. I refreshed plan—large and generous. I refreshed myself on a nickel's worth of Santa Barbara fruit, and ate it all to save it, and have been nursing a fruit-ache for ten long hours in consequence. Southern California production is always very discouraging to a correct articulator of the President's Euglish from the efféte Bast, but I saw a Yankee with a blue abdomen pretty near break his neck last night trying to pronounce Santa Ynez, but he was saved by an old resident rushing in and telling him to drop the Y cut of "Ynez," just in time to save his life. My pronunciator is all twisted out of shape, and I am sometimes fearful my wife will not recognize my speech when I return, and will sue for a divorce. It is safest and best for a benedict to bring his wife with him from the East, that her language may undergo the same climatic change, unless he really desires a divorce any way, in which case he had best come West alone.

There is some genuine codfish-balls aristocracy here, and hotels to correspond; but I prefer to mingle with the common people, as it is more congenial to my financial standing. I find the boarding-house hash about the same at $1.59 per "diet" house as at $5 per diem house; the only essential difference being the amount you have to pay for it, which is very essential to a man whose salary has relapsed from causes beyond his control. The sun sets here about 4 o'clock, and the intelligent voter that wants to vote before the sem goes down—on the old plan, as they do at Los Angeles—has to rustle around and attend to his inalienable rights before dinner, or he will get left. This is accounted for on the principle that a very high hill, overhanging the town to the west, shortens up the voting Bours, according to the old law, very materially, and the election officers use the new code in place of the old. By hanging a high hill to the west of Los Angeles, the officers there could appreciate the necessity for a change.

Here the fine work of the ward politician was so limited, under the old law, for want of time, me of the town lots here, like those os Angeles, stand on end, and the its sell both sides of them. Such

There is a pretty little romance connected with the Santa Cruz Island that I will relate as I hard it. It was at one time inhabited by a very warlike and skilled race of Indians with fine physique and of more than ordinary intelligence. They had one bad habit, however, that made it very disagreeable to all the other tribes with whom they came in contact. They would eat their captives. Once upon a time a Santa Cruz chief and a small hunting party came over and landed at Santa Barbara for the purpose of catching game. They soon found a squad of continental Indians and gave chase. Among the chased was a beautiful young Indian damsel of sweet 18 that was so fine and plump that the chief told the boys to let all the rest go and catch her. She did not have any corsets or woven-wire bustle on to impede her progress, and although her bangs dangled in the bright sweet sunlight, she ran for her life, as she had a strong repugnance to being made up into veal cutlets or rare roasts, and ran like a deer. At last, out of sheer exhaustion, she sat down to rest, and the slower, but more enduring, hunters gained so that they surrounded and captured her. She fought to the last, however, and the young lady with her little fists knocked down two more, and with a rolling-pin knocked another bold-headed. They finally pacified her with some strong twine, and, having bound her, brought her to the chief, who, contrary to the law of the islanders, fell in love with her, for she was beautiful. He had a special provise put in the codical to his will that this one was to be saved, and he made her his queen, and built for her a very fine brown-stone front of some granite boulders on the side hill, and they lived very happily together. This happiness was heightened by the fact that he never went down town mights, never staid out late, always came home regularly to his meafs, and never smoked nor chewed nor swore in her prosence, and always emet to church with her on Sunday. In due course of time they had a large family of strong, robust and

ROBERT INGERSOLL is having trouble with his throat, which he fears may be of a cancerous nature, and he is said to be greatly alarmed at the possibility of its proving serious. With all his defi-ant scorn of Christianity, Mr. Ingersoll seems to have a fear of the hereafter. In the face of death he might be led to consider the possibility of a here after and a future indement. The sense of imminent peril often disclose the existence of beliefs to which men have given a life-long denial. THE total Democratic plurality in New York being, on the average, about 12,000 on a total of over a million votes cast, it follows that the Democratic margin there is about 1 per cent. This is a narrow margin on which to con-struct such assurances of success next year as the Democratic papers and leaders are indulging in. The New York election is far from showing that the State is sure for the Democracy On the contrary, New York is still de batable ground for & Presidential cam gu; and while the Republicans would be unwise to concentrate all their energies upon it, they will make a lively

The bill which Senator St o introduce during the present of Congress as an amendment maturalization laws, and which to the naturalization laws, and which will require foreigners to remain in the untry twenty-one years before be-ming voters, is a protective measure needed to give security to our institu-tions. The American people have of late had toe many exhibitions of the danger there is in allowing, without any discrimination, the freshly-arrived fordiscrimination, the freshly-arrived for-eign element among us to have a hand in the making of the laws for the Re-public. Multitudes come to this coun-try without any knowledge of free gov-ernment, and fired with an intense hatred for those in authority. In the inter-est which they have in the few, they lose sight of the true interests of the great whole. This class of foreigners are not at for governing. They know nothing of the principles underlying republican government, and they care less about them. They are not men who wait for enlightenment, who stand ready to inform themselves in regard to our insti-tutions and methods. But they are men who hold their votes for barter. and who are ready to sell them to the highest bidder.

The yearly importation of Anarchists. Socialists and ignorant paupers into this country has a good deal to do with our growing political corruption. The Democratic city of New York is in the hands of foreigners, and therefore a Republican victory in that municipality solid as the "solid South" is this foreign lawless element for the Demo-ratic party.

Men coming to America with all their ld-world prejudices, and looking to find a tryant in every ruler, are by uc means fitted to take upon themselves the duties of citizenship. What do they know of the questions that the citizens of the Republic are thinking "that come home to them in wages, and the questions of work and wages, and the questions that in-volve the best methods of government, and of its purification?" What does the ignorant pauper and Nilhist, the defiant Anarchist and Socialist of Europe know or care about the principles of free government, or the insti-tutions of the New World? They come here, not for any love of that spirit of freedom that seeks the greatest good of the many, and without recognition of the fact that in obedience to just laws is the greatest freedom to be secured, but they come hating all law, and with the desire to trample upon every restraint. This class of foreigners have the prejudices and the teachings of a lifetime to to unlearn. Two years is not a sufficient time for their reconstruction. The unlearning process is slow and tedious, because it is by no means always willing and voluntary. It takes twenty-one years to train our native-born citizens so that we look upon them as fit to exercise their privileges of citizenship, and yet they have none of the old-world prejudices to do away with and overcome. Of course, every intelligent person is ready to admit that all who come nere from foreign shores are not unfitted to become good citizens, or to help us in making wise laws. But naturalization laws cannot be made to discriminate. They must be general in their nature, and while such a law as that proposed by Senator Stanford might be a loss to us in some respects, and deprive us of the help of thousands who love justice and equity, and whose vote would always be on the side of liberty and advancement, it is no less true that it would cut off from the right of franchise a much larger num-ber whose strength only tends to our weakness and to the danger of our free institutions. That there should be a change in our naturalization laws is beyond question, but whether the period before a foreigner can acquire the right of citizen-ship under this Government should be extended so far as is proposed in the amendment which Senator Stanford intends to offer should be carefully con-

But this much is certain: The stress of foreign immigration is now so great and is of such a character, that the time is not far distant when the people of this country will be compelled to pro-tect themselves, in some way, gainst it. As says a writer in the current number of the Forum: "Naturalization, indeed, does not mean exchange of domicile and a grant of the franchis alone. It means a great deal more than this, and the laws by which it is allowed are based upon the supposition that a person availing himself of them will become in heart and soul a citizen of the country of his adoption. The privileges, moreover, conferred by such laws, like all other privileges, entail corresponding duties. It is the duty of the foreigner who becomes naturalized to discard the natural sentiments in which he was nurtured and to regard the country of his adoption as having an exclusive claim upon his loyalty. Upon any other sup-position, indeed, those laws would be a political blunder of the gravest kind.

"This country has tried the experi ment of naturalization on a vastly larger scale than any other nation in modern times, and she alone is deeply interested in the problem which it involves. The worst feature of the matter is that the importance of making naturalized foreigners Americans, and nothing but Americans, is not at all appreciated by our people. They do not realize that unless this is done the naturalization law, and, indeed, all immigation, is a positive injury to the country; and that foreigners really do not become Americans until they have become so merged in the American people that they cannot be distinguished as a class by opinion or sentiment on any subject from the mass of the population of which they form a part."

WHILE the press and the publicspirited citizens of Southern California are constantly aiming at in-creasing the resources—and consequently the population-of their sec. residing in Los Angeles.

ble end may be attained. desirable and may be attained. Were we to produce at home the eggs, butter, cheese, etc., of which many carleads are daily imported from abroad, an additional population of several thousand desirable citizens would be at once added to our population and a vast amount of money kept at home that is now sent away. In a section that is now sept away. In a section where alfalfa may be out six or seven time a year and corn yields as high as 100 bushels an acre, there is no excuse for the importation of dairy produce.

A gang of fitteen hoodlums entered the beer saloon in the basement of the White House, corner of Commercial and Los Angeles streets, last night, and planned the geles streets, last night, and planned the sand-bagging of the proprietor and the robbing of the till. A man, who was apparently attending to a game of billiards, overheard their conversation and went to inform the police. While he was away, and while the proprietor was drawing a glass of beer, the till was taken, and with its contents a part of the gang made off. The Chief and Police Officers Sheets and Cates arrived shortly after the till was taken, accompanied by the man who gave the information, and he pointed out one of the gang that had been with the crowd when they plotted the robbery. He was arrested and shortly afterward three more were captured in an Aliso-street salocu. In the till when it was taken were $200 in gold notes and some silver. When the prisoners were searched at the station one $10 gold note was found on the person of Ed Harris, and some of the others had various sums in silver.

Proposal to Let New Mexico Have "No Man" Land" — As Unsalmons Report Giving Faulkner His Seat—A California Case Decided.

By Telegraph to The Times.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 14.—[By the Associated Press.] An important case involving treaty relations of the United States with Hawali and San Domingo was argued today in the United States Suprame Court. The case stands on the docket as Hugh Kally, plaintiff in error, against Edward L. Hedden, cellector. The question presented is the alleged exemption from duty under the existing tariff of products of the Dominican Republic which are identical in kind with Republic which are identical in kind with products of the Sandwich Islands, and adproducts of the Sandwich Islands, and admitted free of duty under the special act of Congress approved August 15, 1876. About twenty years ago the United States entered into a freaty with the Dominican Republic; by the terms of which each country agreed the charge higher import duties to charge higher import duties products of the other than e imposed upon like products from were imposed upon like products from any other country. The importers claim exemption from duty for certain sugars and other products imported by them from San Domingo, upon the ground that the articles were of such character that had they been imported from Hawail they weuld have been admitted free of duty under the treaty between the United States and Hawaii, and the act of August, 1876, enforcing that treaty.

the act of August, 1876, enforcing that treaty.

The United States Government maintains that the treaty with the Hawalian Islands was not a mere reciprocity treaty, but was, in substance, a commercial contract, by virtue of which Hawali pays a valuable consideration for the admission of certain merchandise to ports of the United States. Counsel for the Importer: say that, if the United States should be defeated in this case, San Domingo might become the Honolulu of the Atlantic Coast, while, if the United States should succeed, Demmark, Brazil, Central America, Peru, Persia and other foreign governments would be at liberty to shut out American manufactures and products from their ports without giving us any cause for complaint for violation of existing treaties pledging the United States equality there with all other nations. This they say would upset nearly all our existing commercial treaties with foreign powers.

Welcomed at Washington-Senator Ingalis Again in the Role of Tail-Twister.

Senator Sherman was chosen chairman. He was greeted with loud applause, and in acknowledging the compliment, sald that he believed he spoke the general voice of the people in every part of the Union when he said to the distinguished guests that the sympathy of America went faithfully and heartily in a strong desire that they might have home rule in Ireland to the full extent demanded by Parnell and Gladstone. He wanted rule in Ireland to the full extent demanded by Parnell and Gladstone. He wanted Ireland to nossess the same rights as those enjoyed by the people of the United States. Why was it that the British Government denied to the gem of the British Empire what was conferred on all colonies of this great Empire? Irishmen had led in ad-vance all the great battles which England had fought for two centuries. Ireland had furnished the Demosthenes and Ciceros of modern times. Ireland had produced great men in every branch of life. He hoped the plending voice of Gladstone, the greatest statesman of the age, would induce the British Parliament to grant home rule.

British Parliament to grant home rule.

SENATOR INGALLS'S SPEECH.

Senator Ingalls, after the applause with which he was greeted had subsideu, said:

"Two illustrious Irish members of the British Parliament have crossed the ocean to tell the story of the wrongs of Ireland. They are here for the purpose of ascertaining the sentiments of the American people upon this great question, which is now occupying the attention of men all over the civilized world. We have assembled this evening for the purpose of saying that the cause of Ireland is the cause of American of treland is the cause of American and the cause of humanity itself. If we are called upon to choose between expressing our sympathes for Great Britain or for Ireland in this contest, no American citizen will long hesitate as to what his preference shall be. Great Britain should not forget that 7,000,000 for her for the original thirteen colonles revolted and achieved independence under far less provocation than the 7,000,000 Irish people have endured for centuries."

the 7,000,000 Irish people have endured for centuries."
He did not desire to intrude upon the comity of nations, but he could not forget that brutal and degraded British soldlery, within the memory of men who might be now within the hearing of his voice, had sacked this capitol. He could not forget that in every great crisis in American history we have to contend, with the ill will and malevolence of the governing classes of Great Britain; that she concerted with the South and equivocated with the North and did everything short of actual hostillity to secure the downfall of the American Union. During that awful period there was not a battle-field for American liberty which was not illustrated by Irish valor and consecrated by Irish blood.

O'CONNON'S REPLY.

Ingalis—then introduced Sir Arthur O'Connor; who was received with cheers. He said he was sensible of the greatness and sacredness of the cause which he had the honor to representhere in Washington, the headquarters of freedom, the capitol of the grandest and freest community the world had ever seen. No cause which was not just could call for such a distinguished audience. Ireland was attempting by force of organized public opinion, by constitutional and peaceful means to secure a repeal, not of a law, but of a conquest. It was attempting to repeal the conquest of Ireland.

Mr. O'Connor spoke eloquently of the Ingalis then introduced Sir Arthur the conquest of Ireland.

Mr. O'Connor spoke eloquently of the wrongs endured by Ireland during the 700 years of English rule, since that conquest, and proceeded to give a picture of the oppression and hardships to which the Irish people were compelled to bow, and detailed the demands which the Home Rule party made upon the British Government. They had come here to thank America for past ald and to ask for its continuance until the crisis now impending is passed.

PORTLAND (OF.), Dec. 14.—[By the Associated Press.] A Salem special says: State Agent Sweek and Government Agent Shackelford, engaged since last May in inspecting thousands of acres of alleged swamp lands in the Lakeview and Roseburg districts, found about one-half actual swamps or overflowed land, and the remainder dry land. They disagree as to the character of about 3000 acres, 400 of which are settled, and will make separate reports, Shackelford to the General Land Office, and Sweek to the Governor, remaining the same. The remainder they agree upon. Messrs. Sweek and Shackelford flave nearly fulshed their individual reports and will transmit them to their respective headquarters before January 1st, each countersizining the other's report, except where disputed.

Elliott and Richmond, two other land agents, are at The Dalles, having completed an examination of land in The Dalles, Oremon City and Lakeview districts. Their report are said to agree throughout. Over half the land examined was found to be not swamps. As a result of the investigations of the agents 150,000 acres of land at a rough estimate will be lost to the State, but titles to land will be established and disputes which have arisen over swamp land matters since 1800 will be largely settled. It is aspected that patents for lands declared awamp will be itsued by the Government to the State inmediately after the submission and examination of the reports.

The company mines are in Arizona, and it has offices i mines are in Arizona, and it has offices in this city. It was capitalized at $1,000,000, divided into $3 shares, which were ex-tensively advertised and sold. The com-plaint against Bennett is based on an article published in the Herald, in which it was asserted that the Tortolita mining scheme was "a colossal bunce scheme." It is alleged "that plaintiff has suffered actual pecuniary loss and damage to the sum of $500,000." Joseph H. Sprail, president of the company, has brought suit in the same court individually against Bennett for alleged libel, claiming $250,000 damages. He says that the publication created an impression among blaintiff's acquaintances and the public that plaintiff was running a dishousest enterprise, and swindling people out of their money by selling worthless mining stock.

He hurr ed up to the office as soon as he ensered the hotel, and, without waiting to register, inquired eagerly:

"Any letter for me?"

The clerk sorted over a package with the negligent attention that comes of practice, then flopped one—a very small one—on the counter.

The traveling man took it with a curious smile that twisted his pleasant-looking face into a mask of expectancy.

He smiled more as he read it. Then, oblivious of other travelers who jostled him, he laid it tenderly against his lips and actually kissed it.

A loud guffaw startled him.

"Now, look here, old fellow," said a loud voice, "that won't do, you know. Too spoony for anything. Confess, now; your wife didn't write that letter."

Too spoony for anything. Confess, now; your wife didn't write that letter."

"No, she didn't," said the traveling man with an amazed look, as if he would fike to change the subject. "That letter is from my best girl."

The admission was so unexpected that the trio of friends who had caught him said no more until after they had eaten a good dinner and were seated together in a chum's room.

Then they began to badger him.

"It's no use, you've got to read it to us, Dick," said one of them, "we want to know all about your best girl."

"So you shall," said Dick with great coolness. "I will give you the leter and you shall read it yourselves. There it is," and he laid it upon the table.

"I guess not," said the one who had been the loudest in demanding it, "we like to chaff a litle, but I hope we are gentlemen. The young lady would hardly care to have her letter read by this crowd," and he looked reproachfully at his friends.

"But I insist upon it," was the answer. "There is nothing in it to be ashamed of—except the spelling; that is a little shaky, I'll admit, but she won't care in the least. Read it, Hardy, and judge for yourself."

Thus urged, Hardy took up the letter, shame-facedly enough, and read it. There were only a few words. First he laughed, then swallowed suspiciously, and, as he finished it, threw it on the table again, and rubbed the back of his hand across his eyes, as if troubled with dimness of vision.

"Pshaw," he said, "if I had a love letter like that—" and then was silent.

"Fair play!" cried one of the others, with an uneasy laugh.

For a moment or two the company remained silent, while the little letter was passed from hand to hand, and you would have said that each and everyone had hay fever, by the snuffing that was heard. Then Hardy jumped to his feet.

"Three cheers for Dolly, and three cheers more for Dick's best girl!"

They were given with a will.

This book contains 544 pages; is eight and one-half inches long, six inches wide and two inches thick. It is printed on extra beavy paper and is handsomely bound, with embossed cover and gilt-lettered back.

IT IS DIFFERENT FROM ALL OTHER WORKS OF THE KIND EVER PUBLISHED.
FIRST—It teaches those who have it how to left what the matter is when some one gets took. All strains books to the contract of the contract ick. All similar books tell what to de-if yo know what the disease is. THIS BOOK TELLS YOU HOW TO RECOGNIZE THE DISEASE OU HOW TO RECOGNIZE THE DIBEADS, and then what to do for it. No other book sublished does this.

SECOND—when a person is really attacked by a dangerous disease, it enables you to know he fact, and in such cases its advice is, "Send or a competent physician at once." In all other physician at once, "In all other physician at once," In all other physician at once, "In all other physician at once," In all other physicians are the physician at once, "In all other physicians are the physician at once," In all other physicians are the physician at once, "In all other physicians are the physician at once," In all other physicians are physician at once, "In all other physicians are physicians are physicians are physicians are physicians are physicians are physician at once are physicians are physician are physicians are physician are physicians are physicia

t is not necessary to call a physician. Ne other book published dees this.

THIRD—It gives separately, and for each disease, the methods used by each of the different "schools of medicine," and in al cases the prescriptions are made by the most eminent men in their respective mode of practice. This makes the work specially suited to the needs of every family, no matter what school of medicine they prefer—the Alleighth, Homeopathic, Hydropathic, Bolectis or Herbal. NO OTHER BOOK PUBLISHED DOES THIS.

-: TO OUR OLD SUBSCRIBERS:-

It is customary with newspapers to give premiums to new subscribers only; but he publishers of the Mirkon mean to reverse this old rule; they intend to do as well, at least, by their old subscribers—those who have stood by the paper in years past, and paid their money for it "right straight along." We propose to show our appreciation of these friends in a substantial manner; and as the premium to be offered is expensive, and as our express object in offering it is to increase our list of subscribers, we will require every old subscriber who may renew his subscription, in order to receive the valuable premium, to bring in AT LEAST ONE NEW SUBSCRIBER, to whom the premium will be given, as well as to the old subscriber.

The Three Who Think the Woman Innocent Severely Blamed by the Other Jurers - What the People Think of Them-$500 Bail.

Having been out since 3:30 Monday afternoon, the jury in the case of Mrs. Rozelle, the vitriol thrower, was brought into court yesterday morning at ten minutes after 10 o'clock, Judge Gardiner occupying a seat beside Judge Cheney on the bench. Mrs. Rozelle had entered the courtroom a few minutes' previously and occupied her customary seat, holding a handkerchief in her hand, with which she kept hief in her hand, with which she kept ower part of her face covered during roceedings. As on two previous occa when the jury had been brought into sions, when the jury had been brought into court to report progress, Judge Cheney asked the foreman if there was any reasonable probability of their arriving at a verdict, and was answered, as before, in the negative. Then addressing Mr. Green, the Judge repeated the question and received, as on two former occasions from the same juror, an emphatic reply that there was no such reasonable probability. The Judge then addressed the jury briefly, saying that he had kept them out, not with any wish to influe any hardship upon them, but in the hope that it might prove possible to secure a verdict in a case which had been before the court previously without a conclusion having been reached. He alfued to the possibility of some members of the present jury entertaining an opinion similar to one formerly expressed, that they could sooner have arrived at a conclusion had the Judge's charge been different from what it was, and warned them that it was their duty to judge's charge been different from what it was, and warned them that it was their duty to judge's formerly expressed, that they could sooner have arrived at a conclusion had the Judge's charge been different from what it was, and warned them that it was their duty to judge the case according to the evidence presented, aside from all other considerations, and if they failed to do so, they were acting contrary to the spirit of their oaths.

The jury was then discharged. Judge Cheney then said that in consideration of the fact of Mrs. Rozelle having spent some months in jail, and still being unable to secure a verdict in her case to which she was entitled, he would reduce her bail from $2000 to $500 and order the case again put on the calendar for trial.

It did not take long for a Times reporter months in jail, and still being unable to secure a verdict in her case to which she was entitled, he would reduce her bail from £200 to £500 and order the case again put on the calendar for trial.

It did not take long for a Times reporter to learn the names of the three jurors who, during all the time the jury was out, stood out for acquittal. They were Messrs, Green, Brown and McClintock. The leader of the trio, and the one against whom the nine favoring conviction expressed themselves most bitterly, is Mr. E. K. Green, the well-known windmill man and if prominent member of the Prohibition party of this city. In conversation with the reporter, one of the jurywen said:

"I saw how Mr. Green was going from the very start. Even before the evidence was half in, I felt sure from his manner that his sympathies were all with the woman. Still I didn't blame him at all, for I didn't know at that time how I should vote myself when we reached the juryroom, but the remaining testimony settled all my doubts and I went with the majority from the start."

Another juryman, in language indicating indignation, near akin to digust, told the story of their forty-two hours' contest, about as follows:

"Yes, the ballots stood nine to three all the way through, and we might just as well have come in the first night. Yesterday afternoon they (the three) told us if we would not have McGregor's testimony read again and they found it to be as we said, they would go with us. So we came into court and the judge sent out and got the testimony and had it read, and we thought we had them. The foreman told the judge that he thought we would be back in a few minutes. Well, as soon as we got back to the room, the three held a consultation and refused to give in. Green set himself against the majority from the very start, thought he man 'didn't get any more than he deserved,' and that sort of thing. We tried to show them that there wasn't anything in the evidence to show any previous intimacy between Petrie and Mrs. Roselle, and there we stuck.

out. We settled down to make currents as comfortable as possible, feeling pretty sure from the beginning that we couldn't agree."

The jurymen generally expressed themselves as well satisfied with their treatment by the court, although one or two of them thought they might have been made more comfortable at alight. Yesterday morning an effort was made to get all to sign a paper expressing their thanks to Judge Cheney and Deputy Sheriff Cruz for courtesies, but two of the three who wanted a verdict of and Deputy Sheriff Cruz for courtesles, but to of the three who wanted a verdict of not guilty opposed the measure. A prominent lawyer, who has seen one of the now motorious three in the jury box before, expressed himself as not at all surprised at the result, the only wonder in his mind being as to why the District Attorney did not excuse him. General indignation was expressed by citizens at the second miscarriage of justice in this case. One of the jury men reports that Juryman Brown expressed himself as ready to go on Mrs. Rozelle's bail bond rather than see her punished by being kept longer in jall for simply "giving a fellow what he deserved." Regret was expressed by jurymen and spectators interested in the trial, that the prosecution had not introduced testimony brought out. In the preceding trial showing the intimacy existing between Petrle and Mrs. Rozelle previous to the vitriol throwing. Whether tais ends the matter remains to be seen.
